Thanks Justin.

These look good. Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP) made a couple of edits on the last 2 slides. When you have a minute let's discuss.

Thanks,

Byron

Byron,

Yes. You may recall referring this group to me as the appropriate person for an interview about a month or two ago. I spoke with them and gave them background on our compliance programs and activities. They seemed quite happy and surprised at the level of activity we've exerted and asked for feedback on ways they, as a concerned citizens group, could help out or be involved. In addition to working with their regional diesel collaborative, I suggested they could also work with their respective states on development and implementation of heavy-duty I/M programs since OBD is now a reality for the majority of these vehicles. They seemed pleased with the feedback and indicated they'd do some exploration.

Most recently, they followed up with me at the beginning of April to ask for state contacts on our past DEF survey work so they could inquire about those states' experience. Just yesterday, I sent them the contact info for New York and Massachusetts and indicated that our internal contact (Cliff) had retired at the end of last year.

That's the most current info. Hope this helps. If Lee takes this meeting, I'd suggest having staff familiar with the LD I/M program implementation involved, as well as those who work with states on SIP approvals (this may all reside within Meg Patulski's group).

Hi,

Can you each please take a look at the meeting request below. Chris is recalling Diesel IM issues in making the association with this issue, and I am happy to spend the time taking this meeting. I write however because I think the ideas of DPF and SCR system performance are really outside the scope of prior conversations I've been party to and this note alludes to having worked or spoken with EPA staff so I'm wondering if any of your staff have interacted with these folks. Would appreciate you letting me know of your divisions interests and expertise. Will likely need a bit of support in preparation for a meeting and maybe a couple of participants.

Sure. You can have Emily send your regrets and suggest that they meet with me or my staff. I will be in DC on the 12th for other meetings, but think this meeting may be best suited for Lee to take as she has some history on this issue. We can connect with her via video and perhaps I can provide some welcoming remarks

Chris--can you suggest who these folks should talk to please? Note they're planning to be in DC in mid May. I don't think I'm the right person for them to meet with, given their questions.

thanks

April 20, 2015

Dear Ms. McCabe,

We are writing to request a meeting with you on May 12th or 13th 2015 and relevant EPA staff members to discuss ways to ensure successful compliance with the 2007/10 Heavy-Duty Highway Diesel rules. Specifically, we would like to discuss how EPA can provide guidance to states and local clean air agencies who want to develop inspection and maintenance programs for diesel particle filter (DPF) and selective catalytic reduction (SCR) technologies. We've already had very informative conversations on the issue with experts in our state's Department of Environmental Quality, the coordinator of the West Coast Diesel Collaborative, and OTAQ staff and hope that meeting with you will identify the next steps toward achieving this important goal.

We are a group of local and state government, academics, and community groups from Oregon that has been working together on air quality and health issues for a number of years, most recently as part of the Reach the Decision Makers training fellowship through the University of California at San Francisco's Program on Reproductive Health and the Environment. We share a common concern about the detrimental effects of urban air toxics, in particular diesel, on the most vulnerable within our communities.

We will be in D.C. all day May 12th and in the morning of May 13th and would appreciate if you would suggest a time that we would be able to meet with you and relevant staff.

We look forward to hearing from you and confirming a meeting time.

Thank you very much for your time and consideration in this regard.

Sincerely,
